

What are you feeding?

Welcome to this week's edition of your Weekly Winning Resource all about the word distractions. Distractions are defined as something that gets your attention and diverts your concentration. Our mission at I've Decided is your success and we know that you need to stay focused on things that matter and not be distracted by things that have nothing to do with your goals. If you stay focused and ignore any distractions, you will achieve what you want to accomplish much faster. Your results will be the product of either personal distractions or personal focus. What is taking your attention away from your goals?

Your Weekly Winning Word:

Distractions:

Something that gets your attention and diverts your concentration

Your Weekly Winning Article:

Humans are hardwired for distractions, which is why it's so easy to divert our attention. We found this great article that explains the science behind how our brain works and then gives 4 strategies for overcoming distractions. Check it out!
